Mr W. A. Leuschner
World Bldg.
New York City

Dear Leuschner:

First of all I had a bad fall, and almost broke my foot. This is my excuse for not writing you, or calling you back about the southern trip. After I talked to Abe, he said we made so little on the last trip in that territory, even though we had the whole week, he was afraid to try three days.

As soon as I received your letter I called Hartford, and if what he said is true, it is just one of those things we should look for. He told me they had taken the park from him for one of the league teams in order to cut out the traveling. It is certainly too bad there was not more notice, but one lucky thing the team will not be on salary.

I am enclosing the batting order and lineup of The Eagles, and have told my man to send you some publicity right away. You should receive it with this letter.

Again I ask you please to pardon my seeming negligence, but my physical condition was to blame.

Very Truly Yours
